To whom it may concern:

This is my personal recommendation for Gary Mazzilli. Gary worked for my late father, Charles Moore, of Precision Standards International as a Project Manager on the 56,000 square foot Edgewood Condominium project. As a result of the workmanship shown on this project it propelled Precision Standards International to a whole new level.

Gary is a team player and would be an asset to any organization. We wish him the very best in his endeavors.

Sincerely,

PRECISION STANDARDS INTERNATIONAL

Vice President & General Manager

Errata: Michael means well, but he was a young boy back then and doesn't remember the details. Charles was the threshold engineer on the Condo. I built it as const. V.P. For Arms Corp. (1984). We became good friends. In the slowdown of 1991, he hired me to do two smaller projects, which got me through the slowdown. He was a great man, and sorely missed.
